FIRST-WORD MEMORY PROMPTS

Remember the moment, not just the word.

Pick one prompt when a tiny detail feels worth keeping.

The wonderfully imperfect version

How did the word sound in their voice?

The first witness

Who heard it first, and how did they react?

The place

Where were you, and what was happening nearby?

The family translation

What do other people in the family call the same thing?

The repeat request

Did everyone ask to hear it one more time?

The favorite thing

Was the word connected to a person, food, toy, animal, or routine?

One moment I want to remember

MORE STORIES TO KEEP

Words travel through families.

The grandparent word

Which word belongs especially to time with a grandparent or relative?

The two-language moment

Was there a time they chose one language for one person and another for someone else?

The unexpected word

Which word surprised everyone because nobody knew they had noticed it?

The everyday ritual

Which bedtime, mealtime, bath, or goodbye word became part of the family rhythm?

The inside joke

Which made-up version became a family word of its own?

The future note

What would you tell your child about this chapter years from now?

No pressure, no finish line. These prompts are for family memory keeping, not tracking progress or evaluating development.
